1. I have just had a talk with IDEN A, who until this summer was General Counsel of [REDACTED] having held that position for many years. He has been very friendly and understanding of our problems and of considerable assistance in many instances. He has gone back into private practice here in Washington in a very small firm, which, however, should be effective. He has offered to be of any assistance he can and I expect to keep him on the lawyers' panel.

2. He is making a trip for a client, possibly about 15 October or maybe later, going to England, West Germany, and Scandinavia. He asked if there were anything he could do on the trip, as he will have some leisure and all his expenses paid. I said I had nothing specific in mind but would look into it. It struck me that you might find it useful to talk with him, either because of his [REDACTED] experience or for possible future aid on some of your problems in his present capacity. He said he would be very glad to add [REDACTED] to his itinerary. If this has any appeal, let me know at once so I can inform him, or if we are too late to talk to him here he could be contacted in [REDACTED] at the [REDACTED] office there, which he will call on out of courtesy only. In addition to possible assistance, he is very pleasant personally.
